THIRTY-FOUR HOURS' FAST

Men of Wealth Spend a Most Up pleasant Night in the Forests of Hesquiot.

A Region of Great Beauty and Natural Wonders Little Known to White Men.

L. H. Northey, who has been showing a party of Americans the west coast of the island, returned home Saturday afternoon on the steamer Mischief, which had been chartered 10 days for the purpose. During the trip the party visited all the points of interest along the coast. The cruise was not without incidents of interest, one of which Mr. Northey and Messrs. Adams and Wilkinson, two of his guests, will not soon forget. It occurred early last week at Hesquiot. The three gentlemen mentioned left the steamer and crossed the Hesquiot peninsula intending to have the boat come around for them. They started at six o'clock in the morning and walked across, but it grew very stormy the wind blowing a veritable gale. They saw the steamer after she rounded the point and headed up towards them. The gale increased, however, and it soon became apparent that she would have to put back. They saw the vessel pitch and toss about on mountainous waves, and finally, with considerable alarm, they saw her turn around and go back. They felt fear because it was nearly night and they had neither food nor blankets. They could only make the best of a bad situation and starting a fire they prepared to camp out. A search on the beach resulted in finding some mussels. They proved of a variety known as "strong," and hungry as they were they could not "go" them. However the water in which they boiled some proved refreshing. Hunger, of course, meant a sleepless night, and the three arose very early. Breakfast time found them all ravenous, and then mussels are said to have been not bad. An Indian, despatched in a canoe from the Mischief, found them at 4 o'clock that afternoon after a 34 hours' fast. It is not necessary to state that what he brought was very welcome.

The Indian left the Mischief in a canoe the day before, just when she turned to put back, having been directed by Mr. Carmody to take some food and blankets to Mr. Northey and his friends on shore farther up the coast. The Indian, too, poor fellow, had a long fast. He would not make use of the food entrusted to him for fear of being charged with theft, and went without anything for 24 hours until he reached Mr. Northey. He is a Hesquiot Indian named Michael, and is noted along the coast for his skill in a canoe. He was engaged by Mr. Northey to do further work, and was brought to the city. He is just a plain Siwash, but every one in the party admires his composition.

Every passenger on the Mischief was enthusiastic in his praises of the country seen. Especially did they "enthuse" over Hesquiot harbor. Here is what Mr. P. A. O'Farrell said:

"Hesquiot harbor is the finest on the Pacific coast. I have seen them all, and in size, accessibility, depth of water, and protection it is the best. Back of the harbor is a bit of scenery that compares with anything I ever saw, and I have travelled the world over. A fresh water lake, crescent shaped, one mile wide and eight long joins the harbor. The tide just reaches its level. A river joins the first lake and then there is a beautiful waterfall of 200 feet. Still higher up in the mountains is a small lake one mile by two in size, walled in by bluffs, crags and mountains that seem to reach to the sky. It is a perfect reservoir. It was a climb of several hundred feet to reach the lake, but we were rewarded for our pains. Situated at a point where tourist travel could reach it, this one spot would in itself furnish a wonderful attraction."

IN TROUBLE WITH THE LAW.

Offenders in Court at Westminster—Too Much Water Pressure.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Aug. 22.—Geo. Klee Lawa-Luka-Luke, charged with robbery by the Whonnock Packing Co., Rivers Inlet, was sentenced to 18 mos. at hard labor this morning.

Donald McIsaacs, charged with robbery at Vancouver, has elected for summary trial.

Peter Robertson was arrested this morning charged with the theft of a canoe.

The force of water in the water-pipes is so great that joints in several places have been broken.

Five intoxicated Indian boys were rolling about the streets on Sunday. Bob, one of the boys, was arrested, but his tender age exempted him from punishment. The police are looking after the man who supplied the liquor.

LONG IN LIMBO.

Sergeant Walker is After Another Man Who is Also a Suspect.

J. F. Long the man suspected of complicity in the robbery of $600 worth of jewelry from the residence of Wm. Stevenson, was brought over from Port Townsend on Saturday evening by Chief of Police Delaney of Port Townsend, and taken in custody by Constable Smith. His case was called in the Police Court this morning, but was remanded for a day. Sergeant Walker, who went over after Long, is on the track of another man named Brown, who it is supposed also had a hand in the robbery. He and Long were at Oak Bay together and were also in company at Townsend. There it is said they had a quarrel and separted, Brown going to Seattle. Long had none of the missing jewelry in his possession, but had three rings which he claims are his own property. He also had a number of pawn tickets for numerous articles of jewelry deposited in Seattle pawn shops. The prisoner offered no resistance and denies any connection whatever with the robbery. Mrs. Long says she can prove that her husband was at Oak Bay at the time the robbery is said to have taken place.

Senator William B. Allison.

Senator William B. Allison, of Iowa, has just been named to act as chairman of the American delegation to the International Monetary Conference which is to meet in Brussels, to establish, if possible, an international agreement as to the parity of the metals. Senator Allison is the senior senator from Iowa and is now serving his third term in the upper house of the National Congress. In 1888 he was the choice of northwestern Republicans for the presidential nomination, and his boom in Chicago was one of the most vigorously managed in the history of American political conventions. Senator Allison is one of the ablest financiers in the country and was prominently mentioned for the position afterward given to William Windom, the late Secretary of the Treasury. He was offered the position of minister plenipotentiary at one of the leading European capitals, but preferred to represent his state in the Senate, where he has always ranked as a Republican leader.

TEPOORTEN COMMITTED.

He Will Have to Stand Trial for Injuring Stephen Flynn.

The examination of Chas. Tepoorten, charged with doing serious bodly harm to Stephen Oscar Flynn, who died at the Jubilee Hospital on Friday, was continued before Magistrate Macrae.

Dr. Davie stated that he examined Flynn on July 29th and found that he was suffering from extensive bruises on the front of the neck and face. The neck was very much inflamed. The man was not sound, being intensely syphilitic, and also had organic disease of the heart and unsound kidneys. Any wound inflicted on him was liable to produce a dangerous condition. He might have lived four or five years. He died of blood poisoning.

Chief Sheppard testified as to the arrest of Tepoorten. The defendant asked him why he did not let him know of the charge until two weeks after the row. He admitted that the deceased had been hurt fighting, but he did not think then that the man who did the fighting could be found. The defendant further stated that Flynn came into his saloon about the 27th and after some words struck another man on the nose. He (Tepoorten) came from behind the bar and pushed the deceased away and he fell down; but he did not strike or kick him. "The other man" struck Flynn and they had a fight, and were at it for some minutes. "The other man" went by the name of Smith.

The deposition of S. O. Flynn, deceased, was also read, the principal evidence in which was that the barkeeper in the Louvre struck him in the neck and knocked him down and then kicked him.

Mr. Belyea for the defendant contended that the case should be tried summarily, but the court ruled otherwise and committed Tepoorten for trial. Bail for his appearance was accepted in $1000, the defendant in $500 and F. J. Conlin in the same amount.

A Warning to Democracy.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Daily News commenting on the American strikes, strongly denounces what it terms the "barbarous and treacherous" method of the strikers, especially the miners. It says:—"These men are not entitled to the name of strikers in its ordinary sense. They are not even insurgents who respect the ordinary laws of war. They are destroyers of property. No wonder public feeling throughout America is against these despoilers, and, bearing the circumstances in mind, we must make due allowance for the substance and tone of Governor Buchanan's proclamation. We don't desire to see the rioters lynched, but it will be an evil day for democracy if such acts of brutality escape just punishment."

Found the Body.

The steamer Alert returned yesterday morning from Sherringham Bay with a scow load of tan bark for the Rock Bay tannery. A gentleman, who came up on her, reported that the body of the Indian woman drowned some time ago was lying in the water in a creek ready for the police to take charge of. The body was found in the water alongside a high cliff. Sergt. Langley and officer McNeill went down this morning to bring the body up.

RETALIATIOM HAS COME.

President Harrison Issues His Proclamation Imposing Tolls at the Sault.

The Dominion Government Dilly-Dallied Too Long and Invited Coercion.

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—There was considerable excitement here yesterday over the announcement from Washington that President Harrison intended to enforce the retaliatory bill against Canada. It was somewhat lessened today, when it was seen that the retaliation only amounted to 20 cts. per ton and was confined to freight. The TIMES' correspondent called to-day on Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways, who informed him that his own opinion was the policy of the government would be to recoup the Canadian shippers, even if they had to pay the money out of the public treasury for whatever is enacted from them by the imposition of the tolls. Canadian shippers should be placed upon the same footing with American shippers, and the government would see that this was done. This is to remain until the end of the season. He also stated the Canadian Sault canal would be pushed through night and day so as to get it finished next season.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The President has proclaimed retaliation against Canada, in accordance with the authority conferred upon him by the act to enforce reciprocal relations with Canada passed last July. His proclamation is dated August 18th, but was only issued to-day, after a final interview between Secretary Foster and Mr. Michael H. Herbert, the charge d'affaires of the British legation here, which took place this morning. The Canadian Government had asked for delay, pleading the absence of the Ministers from Ottawa and other reasons. A decision was promised by Lord Stanley, the Governor General of Canada, by Monday, August 8th. On the 6th instant Mr. Herbert telegraphed from Newport to Secretary Foster in Washington: "I have received assurance of further consideration. May I consequently venture to hope that no steps may be taken in the meantime?" Secretary Foster replied: "Gratified at your telegram. You may count upon reasonable time, such as indicated in our interview." On the 15th of August the United States Consul General at Ottawa informed Secretary Foster that the decision of the Canadian Ministry was "to continue the rebate on canal tolls as now until the end of the season of navigation." Thereupon the proclamation of retaliation was drawn up and sent to Loon lake for the President's action. On the day it was signed, August 18th, Secretary Foster telegraphed Mr. Herbert: "When may I expect you here or note on canal tolls?" Mr. Herbert replied the same day from Newport: "Have telegraphed to enquire what day I may expect communication." Next day Secretary Foster sent the following significant dispatch: "Department of State, Washington, D.C., August 19.—Hon. Michael H. Herbert, British Charge d'Affaires, Newport, R.I.: The United States Consul General at Ottawa reports that the decision of the Council was to abolish rebate at the end of this season. This confirmed by Canadian press reports. If Canadian discriminations are to continue during this season, compliance with the recent act of Congress requires the President to establish tolls to run concurrently. Discussion as to future action can then proceed under parity of conditions. John W. Foster."

Mr. Herbert hastened to Washington, telegraphing in advance to Mr. Foster: "Could I see you to-morrow morning early at the Department? Kindly reply on receipt of this, in order to enable me to catch train." Mr. Foster answered: "You can see me any hour in the morning between 8 and 11." Mr. Herbert came and saw Mr. Foster this morning.

The memorandum of their final interview is as follows: "Mr. Herbert, in charge of the British Legation, called on the Secretary of State on Saturday, August 20th, and informed the Secretary that he had not yet received the official notice of the action of the Canadian Cabinet on the canal tolls, but he hoped to be able to communicate it early next week. The Secretary of State said that the United States Consul-General at Ottawa reported that the decision of the Cabinet was to abolish the rebate on tolls at the end of the present season, and that this had been confirmed by the ministerial press of Canada. He then asked Mr. Herbert if this conformed to his information on the subject. Mr. Herbert answered that he was not as yet authorized to make any official communication on the subject, but that he had no doubt the Consul-General's report was correct. The Secretary of State then said that such a solution of the question would not be regarded as satisfactory to his government, and, in answer to an inquiry, he stated that the President considered it his duty to issue the proclamation contemplated by the Act of Congress. But he gave Mr. Herbert the assurance that should the Canadian Government give notice of its decision to abolish the discrimination now complained of, the proclamation would be suspended concurrently with such abolition."

The President's proclamation, after reciting the text of the Act of Congress under which it is issued, concludes as follows:—"Whereas, the Government of the Dominion of Canada imposes a toll amounting to about 20 cents per ton on all freight passing through the Welland canal in transit to a port of the United States and also a further toll on all vessels of the United States and on all passengers in transit to a port of the United States, all of which tolls are without rebate, and—whereas the Government of the Dominion of Canada in accordance with an Order-in-Council of April 4th, 1892, refund 18 cents per ton, of the 20 cent tolls at the Welland canal on wheat, indian corn, peas, barley, rye, oats, flaxseed and buckwheat, upon condition that they are originally shipped for and carried to Montreal or some port east of Montreal for export and that, if transhipped at an intermediate point, such transhipment is made within the Dominion of Canada, but allows no such or any other rebate on said products when shipped to a port o, the United States, or when carried to Montreal for export if transhipped within the United States; and whereas, the Government of the Dominion of Canada, by said system of rebate and otherwise, discriminates against the citizens of the United States in the use of the said Welland Canal in violation of the provisions of article 27 of the Treaty of Washington concluded May 8th, 1871, and, whereas, said Welland Canal is connected with the navigation of the Great Lakes, and I am satisfied that the passage through it of cargoes in transit to ports of the United States is made difficult and burdensome by said discriminating system of rebate and otherwise, and is reciprocally unjust and unreasonable. Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power to that end conferred upon me by said Act of Congress, approved July 6th, 1892, do hereby direct that from and after September 1st, 1892, until further notice, a toll of 20 cents per ton be levied, collected and paid on all freight of whatever kind or description passing through the St. Mary's Falls Canal in transit to any part of the Dominion of Canada whether carried in vessels of the United States or of other nations; and to that extent I do hereby suspend from and after the said date the right of free passage through St. Mary's Falls Canal of any and all cargoes in transit to Canadian ports."

CANADIAN PRESS OPINIONS.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—Referring to Harrison's retaliation the Empire says: The spirit in which the present action of the Washington Government has taken is certainly an unfriendly one, and will not tend to increase cordiality of feeling between the two countries. It doubts whether public opinion in Canada will approve of any further concessions in this matter in order to secure an amicable arrangement with a country which seems to have as little regard for international comity as for solemn treaty engagements. There will be a tendency to think the Government right to, in a dignified manner, hold on to the course they have announced, even if they have for the balance of the season to reimburse Canadian shippers who have entered into contracts which this "retaliation" will disarrange rather than yield.

The Globe says: The attempt to strike this blow at Canada's commerce is warranted neither by the present attitude of our ministers nor by the whole course of international dealing with reference to canals and waterways. It would be folly to deny that the step which is to be taken will hurt an important Canadian interest, but to make any further concession in the face of this threat would be too great a sacrifice of our dignity and self respect.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—The Star says: There can be no longer the slightest reason to doubt that President Harrison is moved wholly in the canal dispute by a desire to make election capital. Practically our government came to his terms a week ago. We agreed to waive the whole of our contention, which was right from every point of view, and admit the Monroe doctrine so far as the privileges of the bully goes, but we asked that the flow of commerce be not disturbed during the rest of the present season. This delay would mean very little to the American shipping trade, but it would entirely foil the transparent purpose of the Harrison campaign committee to get up a display of jingo fireworks before the 8th of October. Hence the campaign committee puts retaliation in force.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The Biennial Encampment Opened To-day at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 22.—To-day marks the formal opening of the biennial encampment of the Knights of Pythias, and the hospitable citizens of Kansas city find that their preparations of the last month, elaborate though they were, no more than do justice to the occasion. In the matter of numbers the gathering undoubtedly exceeds anything of the kind ever before held here, and the city is certainly in gayer attire than on any previous occasion in its history. The work of decorating was placed in the hands of the decorators who prepared Denver for the Knights Templar Conclave, and the decorations here fully equal those which greeted the Templars a couple of weeks ago in the capital city of Colorado. The Pallas illuminating plant has been placed at the disposal of the city, and the illuminations which commence to-night, promise to be very fine. The last of the state brigades went into camp this morning, and the reception for the uniform rank, which was held this afternoon, was participated in by representatives of the order from every state in the union. Troost Park is given over to the Knights to-day, and a special programme has been arranged for their entertainment this afternoon and evening. Popular interest centres in the grand parade which will take place to-morrow afternoon, which will be participated in by not less that fifteen thousand Knights in full uniform.

LABOR DAY AT NANAIMO.

A Magnificent Procession—Banners and Mottoes and Immense Enthusiasm.

Mayor Beaven Makes a Telling Speech—Addresses by Messrs. Brown, Keith Foster, Etc.

NANAIMO, Aug. 22.—The labor demonstration on Saturday greatly surpassed that held in previous years, both in display and enthusiasm. The day was bright and cloudless, and although the sun shone out strong still the heat was somewhat checked by the cool breeze which blew upon the city. From every flagstaff in the city flew the national emblem, and in many places the "stars and stripes" were also to be seen. The procession was timed to form at 9:30, but it was 10 o'clock before the crowds could be got together. The citizens turned out en masse to witness the gathering of all the labor unions in Nanaimo. The procession formed in front of the Odd Fellows' new block. In the lead were the marshals and the Nanaimo silver cornet band, followed by the Trades and Labor Council and coast steamers' union with two very handsome banners bearing the inscription on one side of "Our Motto—Never Give up the Ship," with emblems of an anchor, the sailors' hold-fast. The sailors were dressed in full uniform, and following them was a full rigged ship on a wagon drawn by a dog in charge of Masters Arthur Webb and F. Davis. The seamen looked immense, their turn out being well got up. Next came the Knights of Labor, Calvin Ewing assembly, headed by a beautiful banner; then No. 1 branch of the miners' association, their banner being the handsomest in the procession, and bearing the date of its foundation, in the centre of which was a miner appearing as he does when at work. Next the banner of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, followed by the Journeymen Tailors' Union, with an appropriate banner. The Coal Trimmers' Union followed, with a banner on which appeared a steamer entering the port for coal. The Fire Department came next, the reel and engine gaily decorated with colored ribbons and natural flowers, adding a picturesque scene to the procession.

The line of march being taken through Wallace street to the railroad crossing on Comox road; here it was joined by the Northfield contingent, headed by the Northfield brass band, who fell in in the following order on the counter march: Victoria Assembly, Knights of Labor, with a large banner bearing the inscription "Universal cooperation will abolish the wage system." Branch No. 2, with a banner showing the emblems of a pick and shovel and the motto "Eight hours we have, and our union recognized." Then came the carriages containing the Mayor and Council of Nanaimo, Mayor Beaven of Victoria, and labor delegates of Vancouver. The inscriptions on many of the smaller banners were "The nation and the people demand exclusion of Japs and Chinese;" "Let our march be from the schools to the workshop;" "We aim to secure to the workers a full enjoyment of the wealth they create;" "Honest labor asks not for charity;" "In unity there is strength;" "Eight hours for recreation and education." The march was not so long as intended, owing to the heat of the sun. The procession marched back through Wallace street to the Crescent, thence through Commercial street via Newcastle townsite to the grounds. After dinner the mammoth platform was packed by all classes to listen to the speeches delivered by some of our most able speakers on the labor question.

Mr. Gordon, M.P., occupied the position of chairman, and opened the meeting at 2:10 p.m., by a few remarks. He would not occupy their time in a lengthy speech as there were other speakers they would more gladly listen to. In introducing Mayor Beaven he eulogised him for the part he took in all labor movements. He alluded to the "Ballot Act" introduced by that gentleman some years ago in the local House, and the good which resulted from it. Of course the difficulties of those days are not met with at the present time.

Mayor Beaven, on rising was received with prolonged cheers. He spoke as follows: "Mr. Chairman, your chairman has very kindly introduced me to the people of Nanaimo. I know I am a comparative stranger to many of you gathered here to-day and to many others in the province, as the population has been increasing so fast during the past few years that it is impossible to keep pace with the times in this matter. In alluding to the "Ballot Act," referred to by my friend Mr. Gordon, although we differed from each other in the local House, I know he always acted like a gentleman to me, but we agreed on subjects that were of interest to the public at large. It is the first time I have had the pleasure of taking part in a labor demonstration in this province. It is with extreme pleasure that I take part in this demonstration today. It is essential that everything connected with a labor movement should be in accord with each other. In England and some other countries, the early part of the year is generally chosen as labor day, but here the best and brightest part of the year is selected, when you can better enjoy the sunshine. I am pleased to observe the interest that is taken in this labor demonstration, and I could not help thinking as I rode in a carriage with the procession, that it was not a fair division of labor, as I noticed you had to walk in the heat of the sun while I was enabled to ride." In alluding to the laborinterest he said: "your chairman has very kindly said that in my early connection with this province I had introduced acts to help the labor interests, especially the miner. The term miner has a certain charm to my ear for when I first came to Cariboo it was by wielding a pick and shovel that I earned my daily bread, and if ever I can be of service to the toiler of this country he will always receive my earnest support. It is essentially a proper thing that this labor demonstration should take place in the city of Nanaimo. I suppose you are all aware that it was the Hudson Bay Company that first started the industry of mining coal on the north of the island, and afterwards came to Nanaimo. (Cheers.) It is with pleasure that I saw the distinguished manager of these extensive mines taking part in the procession today (cheers) and I would have liked to have seen other prominent employers present. The speaker alluded to G. W. Childs, the extensive employer of labor in Philadelphia, and his well known method of co-operation with his employees. Proceeding he said: I do do not know that I ought to refer to matters of a more political character than your labor demonstration, but I cannot help thinking that it is of interest to you and to the province that I should refer to the subject of which I am about to speak. When I first came to this country of British Columbia I found it to be governed as a colony of Great Britain, a form of government which to my mind was an obnoxious government, and it was not long before we succeeded in bringing it to a close. We advocated a responsible government, which after a hard struggle we obtained according to our desires; and until the last few years had legislated successfully. The present form of government is the same but still the working of it has been brought down by cliques, land grabbing and other abuses. Let me ask you to analyze the proceedings in the House and tell me have the people of Nanaimo, Vancouver and Westminster had anything to do with the passing of laws in this province? I say No! (Applause) There is 75 per cent. of the population without a voice in the country. Shall such a government continue to ignore you with impunity? You have an opportunity at least every four years to change it. I say it is a wicked thing for any man to try to divide this Province by the Gulf of Georgia, and we should not allow by any chicanery such a thing to be carried out. Of course some politicians will claim there are very large interests involved; there are those who want large tracts of land, a subsidy for some projected railroad company, who do not care as long as they get the land whether they build a road or not." The speaker explained how the subsidies are obtained. "It is for you to put down such actions by selecting men to represent you who will be true to your interests and bring this sort of dishonest business to an end. Some of the gentlemen who represent the constituencies did not always have a fair trial, as four years is a very short time to try the capabilities of a man. I don't know how it has worked in other constituencies, but I have the proud feeling of knowing that the first time I represented my constituency they overlooked my faults and have always done so. You should not take a personal dislike to a man who is trying to do his best as a representative of the people without giving him a fair trial. It may be superfluous for me to advise you on this subject, but you should go more for principle than for the individual, who works for the interest of the laborer. The speaker, in referring to free education, said: When I observe the families that have grown up during the last 20 years I am convinced there is nothing of greater strength to the people than in being in thorough union on the subject of free education, and while it is purely essential that the education of the young should be non-sectarian it should also be kept strictly non-political (applause) and any attempts to make it so should be frowned upon. I noticed on one of your banners which you displayed today how you refer to this matter, and I hope you will always look down upon any Government that will attempt to make the education system a political instrument. (Cheers.) The gentlemen who will follow me will deal more ably with the question of Chinese in this province so I will not say much on the subject." The speaker scored the leader of the Government in preventing the passage of the Chinese exclusion bill and thus permitting them to be employed underground, and during his remarks he was loudly applauded. He pointed out the remedy they had to prevent such disgraceful legislation, and trusted the time was not far distant when the present government would be changed. (Cheers.) The present scourge of smallpox in Victoria was due to our connection with the Chinese, and he hoped it would be a lesson to the powers that be. "When you next have an opportunity I hope you will put a stop to the minority ruling this province. The present government is kept in power by the small constituencies and till a change is made you will not have a government to serve your interests as they should. We have had a most singular chain of circumstances enacted this year. Our affairs have been governed most shamefully, and we have had the executive council legislating matters without the sanction of law." He concluded amidst prolonged cheers.

Mr. Brown, M.P.P., was received with cheers. He expressed the pleasure he felt in addressing them for a second time. He referred to the previous visit when they had received an insult from the government by having the military sent in their midst He spoke of the success which attended the demonstration and would be pleased to see the whole of the province carrying out the day in a like manner. There had been some mistake made or there would have been a larger representation than had arrived from New Westminster, but he assured his hearers if they were not present in person they were with them in heart and soul (cheers). He then alluded to the political situation in Victoria, and the shameful manner in which Nanaimo, Vancouver and Westminster were treated by the Government. Mr. Beaven had said Nanaimo was not represented in the Legislature, and what he said was true in the sense he meant it. There are some constituencies that drown your vote although three of them put together have not the population of this city (cries of hunt them out). When you cast your vote cast it for a man who has principle and conviction, and not be prejudiced against him by any petty jealousy. He spoke at length on the labor classes and their objects. He dealt ably with the Chinese question which was received with repeated cheers.

Mr. Howell, of Victoria, felt they did not desire him to deliver a long speech and he would refrain from doing so. He alluded to the labor troubles in the States, which he stigmatized as disgraceful to a country which claims to be a land of the free. He reiterated the statement made by Mayor Beaven as to the numbers who were disenfranchised, and said this should not be so. We must first educate the people to their rights and when once that is done victory will be easy. In conclusion he said he was led to have some hopes that this country would soon be settled on the labor question, and he hoped before long they would have men in the Legislature to stand side by side with Messrs. Beaven, Keith and Foster in this important question. (Cheers.)

Mr. Foster, M. P., on taking the stand, observed that the audience was becoming very restless and he would not detain them long. He was called upon to speak on the land question, and as it was a subject he had had at heart for many years he felt the request was a compliment to him. He briefly spoke of the question of a miner holding land, and pointed out that the fact of the rich men holding land for a speculative purpose was the cause of so much trouble accruing in every country. He illustrated the case of a miner who buys a piece of land when there is a boom on, and pointed out it was the rich man who was benefited by the purchase, and after the boom was over the miner was thrown out of employment and had to sell his land for less than he gave for it, and the rich man again benefited by it. He spoke on the Chinese question, which being well acquainted with, he dealt with in a telling manner.

Mr. T. Keith, M.P.P., expressed the sympathy he felt for those who were compelled to stand and listen to the speakers, and he felt it would be kinder to step down and let the audience go where they would be better entertained, but he would only say a few words. He spoke briefly on the Chinese question by special request, and his remarks were received with applause. Mr. Keith handled his subject in a masterly manner, and clearly showed he had been at some pains to collect statistics to back his arguments. His remarks were extremely interesting to his hearers, who, while listening to him, seemed to forget they had been standing for two hours. He paid a high tribute to Mayor Beaven and Mr. Brown, M.P.P., for the kindness he received at their hands when attending the Legislature. He spoke of the bill he was instrumental in passing through the local House and its treatment at Ottawa.

The chairman explained that there were two more speakers to follow, and he thought it would be kinder of them to waive their privilege as the audience seemed to be very tired from long standing. He, however, would call upon Mr. G. Norris. (Cheers).

Mr. G. Norris said he should be insulting them if he attempted to deliver a lengthy address.

Mr. Tully Boyce then spoke briefly, after which a vote of thanks was passed to the visitors, speakers and chairman, and the programme was brought to a close.

The sports were then proceeded with and followed by a grand dance in the evening. The day was celebrated in a manner that has surpassed everything previously given in Nanaimo, and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves and the most interesting event in the history of Nanaimo was brought to a close.

HALL AND PRITCHARD.

The Australian Defeats the English Middleweight in Three Rounds.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The public were surprised when they heard that Jim Hall and Ted Pritchard had fought today at Brighton, as the fight was not expected until Monday. The dread of public interference is said to have been the cause of anticipating the date. Betting had been in favor of Pritchard, but to-day was in favor of Hall. Only the backers of the men and a few sports were present. Hall soon showed that he had a longer reach and was far cleverer than Pritchard, and almost from the first it was evident victory would rest with the former. Pritchard made a splendid defence, but showed signs of being done up in the third round. He failed to come to time for the fourth, Hall thus winning the fight and £2000.

The fight took place in a field at Port Slade, in presence of forty spectators. In the first round, Charley Mitchell won the toss for Hall and placed Hall with his back to the sun, which beat down fiercely on the men. Both men were cautious at first, but after sparring about for a while, they began to fight with vigor and spirit. Pritchard landed the first blow on Hall's mouth, leaving a mark. This encouraged Pritchard's friends a little, and they cheered heartily. Pritchard used his hands with effect on Hall's face and neck, and held the advantage until the close of the round. In the second round Pritchard gave some of his terrific right swingers and brought Hall to the ground in nine seconds. The third round saw a change of the situation. Hall fought Pritchard everywhere, and in the final round Hall maintained the advantage, giving Pritchard a frightful punishment and making his jaws rattle with a terrific blow on the chin, which was repeated, apparently dazing Pritchard and utterly demoralizing him. Pritchard was unable to respond to the call of time. Charley Mitchell and Rowell seconded the winner; Blakelock and Baldeck seconded Pritchard.

CHURCH PRELATES.

The Tension Between Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishops Corrigan and Ireland.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 22.—Now that Cardinal Gibbons has returned to the city after a prolonged absence there is a good deal of speculation in church circles as to whether his eminence will take any cognizance of the recent controversy between Archbishop Corrigan of New York, and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, or rather of the covert attack of the former upon the latter. Considerable feeling has been manifested in circles close to the Cardinal over a recent interview in which Archbishop Corrigan was reported to have said that certain dispatches from Rome emanated from friends of Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland, and that these friends were his (Corrigan's) enemies. This was as much as to say that he regarded the Cardinal in the light of one of his enemies in the controversy over the Faribault system, and the view has been freely expressed that in making this statement the Archbishop was guilty of a direct and wanton mark of disrespect, if not of insubordination, towards Cardinal Gibbons, who is the spiritual head of the church in this country. Amongst those most closely associated with his eminence, however, it is not thought that he will take any cognizance of the matter. Said one of them to-day: "The Cardinal is a meek and mild mannered man. He loves peace and avoids controversy, especially when it is likely to take on a personal tinge. For this reason, therefore, whatever he may think, I do not imagine that he will take any cognizance of what the Archbishop of New York has said. The friends of the latter, however, have been wise in advising him not to go too far. He has a right to his own opinions, no matter how positive they are, but he has no right to so ventilate them, and especially to reflect in an unkind manner upon our beloved Cardinal. His recent experience with the Vatican, it is hoped, will have taught him the lesson that high dignitaries of the church should be just as careful in reflecting upon their official colleagues and superiors as are the priests under their charge." Cardinal Gibbons is in better health than for some time, although he still cannot be regarded as a well man. It is understood that he will shortly take a trip through the west.

A Big Suit.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 22.—The trial of the now famous case of Henry Seibert against the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad was commenced in the District Court to-day. The case is one of the most important foreclosure suits ever instituted in the Northwest. Henry Seibert as trustee representing three million dollars of the improvement and equipment bonds of the railroad, began his foreclosure proceedings in June, 1888. Since that time it has been almost weekly on the calendar of the District Court, and has grown to mammoth proportions. The printed records up to date fill three volumes of a thousand pages each. If the case goes to the Supreme Court, as it is likely to do, the record will form a small legal library in itself. An amazing array of legal talent has been retained. The different interests will be represented by the following well known legal lights: Henry Seibert, trustee; John M. Shaw, Minneapolis, Rock Island & Burlington roads; Thomas F. Withrow, receiver; W. H. Truesdale, Albert E. Clarke; Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., C. Truesdale, Minneapolis, and McClure, Turner & Ralston, New York; Central Trust Co., of New York; Butler, Stillman & Hubbard, of New York; and Harris Richardson, St. Paul; Robert Benson and others, by Lusk & Bunn, St. Paul; Fidelity Loan & Trust Co., Woods & Tingman, Minneapolis. The main fight will be between Henry Seibert as trustee and the Central Trust Co., the various interests being more or less identical with one another. Henry Seibert is a capitalist of New York city. His aim is to establish the mortgages which he holds as a first lien, and he also wants the other mortgages foreclosed.

The Inland Exhibition—Successful Mining Enterprises—Indians Making Progress.

KAMLOOPS.

The public schools were re-opened on the 15th. All the pupils attending were required to be vaccinated.

D. M. Hosker, who for seven years has been mechanical superintendent here for the C.P.R. left for Vancouver on Friday, to make his home in that city.

Roadmaster Stevenson reports that he cannot locate a suitable direct route for a road between Shuswap and Notch Hill, but says a good road may be made from Shuswap to Tappen Siding and a side line run to Notch Hill. A bridge 250 feet long would have to be built across a gorge.

The prize lists for the Inland Agricultural Association Exhibition to be held at Kamloops on October 5th, 6th and 7th have been issued and every effort is being made to have it the greatest fair ever held in the Interior. $3,000 will be offered in prizes.

Arrangements have been completed for the Kamloops fall race meeting, which takes place October 6th, 7th and 8th. $1400 will be given in prizes.

The people of Lytton will hold high carnival on Sept. 7th and 8th. An old time dance party and series of athletic sports and horse races will be held on the dates mentioned, and the proceeds will be donated toward the establishment of a public reading room and library.

Mr. J. W. Mackay got home the first of this week from his trip of four weeks among the Indians. He vaccinated from 700 to 800 along the line of railway between Kamloops and Spuzzum. He found the crops of the Indians looking well, and that they had extended into fruit-culture, planting out grape vines. A large number of his people are employed on the railway, and are found to be good hands. The expenditure of the award in the Onderdonk arbitration case furnishes more work than usual this year. The salmon catch has been very small. There is general complaint among white settlers that the summer has been cold and backward.

The Hydraulic Co. is pushing operations at Van Winkle Bar, about three miles above Lytton. Several new mining locations have been made on Siwash Creek. Some Tacoma people are wanting to open hydraulic works at Big Bend. They think they have found some pay streaks underneath the abandoned diggings there.

The miners are running a drift near Salmon river about 8 miles from North Bend, on a vein of free milling ore, and they think their prospects are good.

Mr. John Murray of Spence's Bridge, has sold a large quantity of fruit this season. The demand is increasing, and is more than he is able to supply.

James Derby and Louis Rheault started Saturday morning for Mosquito Flat, each with a saddle and a pack horse, where they will put in six weeks prospecting and doing assessment work on the Toughnut and Union.

Lively progress has been made on the new wagon road from Nicola to Granite creek. One mile a day was finished during the first thirty days of work. Construction is however becoming much more difficult, as progress is made southward, and Roadmaster Stevenson expects to complete but 10 miles more during the season.

During the past week Major Vaughn occupied some time in making a perliminary survey for railway purposes of the land between the town and the mine, which is located 2½ miles south of here. The work of drifting in the mine still goes on energetically, and every day shows a thickening of the seam and an improvement of the coal, which hardens as it gets deeper. The sample of coal is now first class.

Game of all kinds is said to be very plentiful in the vicinity of Clinton. The fishing at Kelly's and Polly's lakes is also "way up." In one day H. P. Horan caught 48 lbs. of trout at the first mentioned lake.

REVELSTOKE.

School was to have opened last Monday, but the newly engaged teacher, Mr. Stephenson, of Victoria, has not yet turned up.

Mr. Charles F. Blackburn will begin sluicing on the Lardeau placers at an early date. Good prospects have been obtained and ground secured.

Pete Walker, Charley Holden and Tom Downs arrived up from the Lardeau on Wednesday. They brought six samples of rock from the "Silver Cup" which was assayed by Mr. Reeser on Thursday, the richest of the pieces sampling 1.314 oz. silver to the ton, the average for the whole six being 626 oz. This ore was only assayed for silver, but it also carries gold, iron and copper.

Mr. S. Mason of New Orleans and San Francisco, has been in town for some days past. He is looking for good mining investments and yesterday he drew up an agreement with Pete Walker, Charley Holden and Tom Downs, owners of the "Silver Cup," to bond the mine in $10,000, ten per cent. down and the balance in six months.

The Sanderson hot springs at Arrow lake are a great attraction to excursionists this season.

James Barclay was drowned in the lake near Nakusp on Sunday last. He went out in a canoe, when a storm came up and the small craft was upset. The body has not been found.

GOLDEN.

School was opened on Monday.

A. F. Tro, jeweler, of Donald, was robbed of a case said to contain $500 worth of rings. He left the case in the Kootenay Hotel and went out for a few minutes. When he returned the case was missing.

J. A. Colquhoun, representing the Gold and Silver Recovery Syndicate of Glasgow, Scotland, has located at Golden, to demonstrate to miners the MacArthur-Forrest process of treating ores. The necessary plant and laboratories have been erected.

DISEASE OFTEN FOUND IN COW'S MILK.

The tendency of cow's milk to become acid is due to a fermentation induced by certain bacteria. This fermentation is always increased by the action of oxygen in the air, and therefore is very rapidly induced when milk is exposed in shallow vessels, as is generally the case in dairies. Unclean vessels of any kind also induce fermentation, because they generally contain the bacteria that always accompany dirt. Cow's milk often carries disease germs, the principal ones being those of tuberculosis, scarlet fever, and typhoid fever.

These are stern facts, and should be carefully considered by every mother who values the life of her infant. Little ones fed on cow's milk during the summer time are liable to be cut off at any time by disease, especially in large towns and cities.

The duty of the mother is to shield her babe from all danger, when it is necessary to feed it artificially. Mothers have now that celebrated Lactated Food which is so strongly recommended by medical men as the nearest approach to mother's milk. Its composition is pure, healthy and invigorating. It is made from the best products of nature, and is suited for the weakest digestion. The mothers of Canada who have used it, extol its virtues and recommend it to their friends. It can be said with truth, that Lactated Food saves babies' lives.

KASLO CITY
KOOTENAY LAKE.

SINCE the opening of navigation many hundreds of people have poured into Kaslo City. The discoveries of last fall have proved as rich as expected, and many new ones, fully as important, have been located this spring. The Kaslo-Kootenay Land Company have built roads and trails into the important mines, and surveys have been completed for the railway. The contract for clearing the right-of-way for the latter will be let in a few days. Many substantial buildings have been erected so far this year, and a large number will be begun immediately, including a handsome hotel.

A large number of business and residential lots have been sold, and many have changed hands at a good profit. In a short time the Company will advance the price of all lots.

Now is the Time to Invest.

For prices, terms and full particulars, apply to the undersigned.

EXIT DR. DAVIE.

A few weeks ago the provincial medical health officer ordered that all the "suspects" in Victoria, including many who had been isolated for several days, should be removed to Ross Bay station. Dr. Milne said it would be both unfair and unsafe to mix those people who had been quarantined for some time with others who had been recently exposed to contagion, more especially as it was doubtful whether some of the former had been exposed at all. For taking this stand Dr. Milne was removed from office by the Government at the suggestion of Dr. Davie, and Dr. Wade was appointed in his stead. As if to show the wisdom of the Government thus interfering with municipal functions, some of those people whom Dr. Davie had insisted on removing to Ross Bay were released from quarantine in a day or two, while others were allowed to stay in their own houses for the remainder of their quarantine term. This was a practical justification of Dr. Milne's position, but still the ban which the two Davies had seen fit to arbitrarily place on that gentleman was allowed to remain. It must be kept in mind that Dr. Milne did not refuse to remove all "suspects" to Ross Bay; he had, in fact, about the time when his decapitation was decreed ordered to the quarantine station several people who were then recently exposed to contagion. All he contended for was that the suspects who had been isolated for days should not be placed along with those freshly exposed.

Some time after this it appeared that this regulation regarding suspects was not carried out in Vancouver. It was known, indeed, that some of the buildings from which smallpox patients had been taken were not even quarantined, showing that the authorities there had departed much further from the regulations than was proposed by Dr. Milne. Still there were no arbitrary decapitations in Vancouver. Dr. Davie went up to Vancouver with the purpose of instructing the people there, and also to insist on the concentration of the disease by removing the patients from Moodyville and Hastings to Deadman's Island. This latter proposition was summarily rejected by the Vancouver authorities, Health Inspector Huntly going so far as to tell Dr. Davie that in such matters as this the Provincial health officer would have to take instructions from the municipal officer. Still there were no attempts at decapitation.

A few days ago there appeared a case of smallpox in a hotel at Vancouver. The patient was promptly removed to the hospital, but when the health officer proceeded to carry out Dr. Davie's order to remove the other guests in the hotel to a quarantine station the civic authorities stepped in and prevented him. The provincial health officer's authority being thus defied, one might have supposed that the Government would come to his aid with that arbitrary power which it saw fit to exercise in Victoria. Nothing of the kind was done. Rather than undertake the task of reducing the Vancouver authorities to subjection, Dr. Davie concluded to efface himself. On the plea that the smallpox outbreak is now under control he asked that he be discharged from office, and discharged he is, leaving unexecuted in Vancouver what he insisted upon as a necessary regulation in Victoria. In his letter to the Government appears a plaintive wail that in Vancouver "the methods carried out are complex, and not the best obtainable, the Municipal Council of the city objecting to more simple and perfect plans"—and that is all. In Victoria the "more simple and perfect plans" would have been forced on the municipal authorities et armis, but rather than proceed thus against Vancouver Dr. Davie quietly snuffs himself out, and the Government assists him in the process. The true inwardness of the situation is easily understood.

CANAL RETALIATION.

The Dominion Government has no reason to congratulate itself on the outcome of its treatment of the canal toll question. The President has issued the threatened proclamation imposing tolls on all freight passing through the Sault Ste Marie canal to any Canadian port, whether carried by a Canadian or a United States vessel. This amounts to a practical prohibition of Canadian traffic through the Sault, and leaves the Dominion Government a choice between the two unpleasant alternatives—allowing the suspension for this season of the Canadian shipping trade with Lake Superior and abandoning under compulsion its own Welland canal rebate policy. It cannot well avoid choosing the latter, for the former would mean serious loss to the country. It would surely have been much better for our Government to have abandoned its untenable position without this display of coercion from the Washington Government; its policy of dallying with the question has placed it in a decidedly painful dilemma. It will be noticed that the action of the Washington people is exactly in line with our own, for they propose a discrimination between routes and not between vessels, which our Government pleads as a justification for its Welland canal scheme. We cannot complain if they interpret the Washington Treaty in the same way as we do, and that is all the President's proclamation amounts to.

TWO-FACED GOVERNMENT.

TO THE EDITOR:—Over a week ago you referred in a leading article to the meekness of Dr. Davie and his brother, the Attorney-General, in their manner of receiving the dictates of Officer Huntley of Vancouver. Had Sanitary Officer Bailey of this city written such a letter as that written by Officer Huntley of Vancouver, what would have been the result? I will venture to tell you. Theodore would have been at work, and in less than twenty-four hours Mayor Beaven and the city aldermen would have been decapitated, and not only would the sheriff have been in charge, but the Czar would have appointed a commission to take charge of the city affairs.

But why this meekness and submission on the part of Dr. Davie and his brother Theodore towards the Vancouver officials? Are not the rules and regulations which have been so strictly enforced in Victoria also applicable to Vancouver? The celebrated health rules which the Attorney-General framed, one would suppose, for the whole province, are only applicable to the city of Victoria, and although cases of smallpox have recently developed in Vancouver no steps have been taken by the autocrat to make rules specially applicable to the city of Vancouver.

Why this meekness? and why this discrimination? ONLOOKER.

A CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR:—I have just noticed that in my letter under the caption of Italy and England, which you were good enough to publish on the 18th inst, the "intelligent compositor," by leaving out a few words, has made me say that "From a calculation made by a Fellow of the Royal Statistical Society, based on a household census, it is shown that the number of people who are opposed to compulsory vaccination is 87 per cent. of the adult population, while 68 per cent. are in favor of its abolition altogether."

The above statement if true would be sufficiently startling, but alas! it is not true, for not even in England has public opinion as yet become so enlightened as to justify any such statement.

What I really did write was "From a calculation based on a household census, made in 63 towns and districts it is shown" and so on. An important section of the English people is opposed to vaccination, but not nearly all England by any manner of means.

As the error, if left without explanation, will certainly tend to discredit the remainder of my letter, I trust you will give this correction equal prominence.

THE OAR.

PURELY FOR GLORY.

This evening at 7 o'clock the undecided junior four-oared race of Saturday's regatta will be rowed over. It will be over the regular course, and H. M. Yates, judge and starter, will give the word at 7 o'clock. The crews are composed as follows:—

F. Mallandaine (stroke), E. Mallandaine, Jr., H. F. Hewitt and W. H. Wilkerson (bow).

D. B. McConnan (stroke), G. E. Jorgenson, J. H. Austin and R. W. Clarke (bow).

The race was the best one on Saturday while it lasted, and there should be a big turn out to-night, as a strong spirit of rivalry exists between the two crews and the race will be more for pure honor than for the trophies.

TWO BOLD SWIMMERS.

There will be a swimming match Wednesday evening from the James Bay Association boat house to a point in the harbor and return, between Dr. Sproule and G. F. Askew. The latter won the match on Saturday from a large crowd of swimmers, and did it with apparent ease. His style was the over-head reach, swimming on the side, the favorite style with Beckwith, Johnson, Cavill, as it was with Capt. Webb and other front rank swimmers. Dr. Sproule, one of the best all-round athletes on the Pacific coast, was prevented entering the match on Saturday by another engagement.

The fire department responded to an alarm at 2:30 yesterday (Sunday) afternoon and put out a grass fire near Mr. Pearse's residence, Fort street. The chemical and the neighbors stopped the conflagration and saved a stable. Mr. Pearse offers a reward for the detection of the incendiary.

City Engineer, E. A. Wilmot, to-day ordered the gully bridge over the Gorge road, the second bridge from Government street, closed by direction of the council. It is much used, and if it is long closed will be a great inconvenience.

An Addition to the Fleet.

It is not unlikely that before many days the steamer Flyer will be on the Victoria route. The matter is being looked into by her owners with a view of mapping out a day run. If nothing better can be found Captain Scott says the boat will come here.

Well-earned Vacation.

Sunday morning's boat to the Mainland carried as passengers to Harrison Hot Springs Capt. Clement, pilot, and First Assistant Engineer Wolfred of the City of Kingston. The latter was accompanied by his family. The party will spend a few weeks at British Columbia's popular health resort.

To Live in Detroit.

O. F. Chapman, the well known artist, leaves to-morrow morning for Detroit, Mich. He will be accompanied by his wife, and the two will take up their residence in the beautiful city of the Straits. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman have many friends in Victoria who wish them every success in their new home.

Pure Straight Comedy.

"Hoss and Hoss," which is to appear at the Victoria Thursday night, one performance only, is a departure in some respects from other farce-comedies, in that there is not a pair of black stockings in sight, or a short dress needed in the piece. The costumes are all modern and natural, though of course pretty and peculiar, as the case may be, but no burlesque about them.

From the Frigid Zone.

Among the arrivals in the city, Saturday, was Father Tosi, a Jesuit missionary from Alaska. He will be remembered by old time Victorians as the companion of Bishop Seghers on the trip which cost the latter his life. The father has a mission in northern Alaska at a point where communication is had with the world only once a year. He is on his way east and will return to his charge next year. He is a guest of Bishop Lemmens.

Dauntless Sisters of Charity.

The Catholics of Victoria will be pained to learn that the sister of charity who was injured in Alaska and taken to San Francisco for treatment is Sister Mary Joseph, a sister of the order of St. Anne, and formerly stationed at the hospital here in Victoria. As an evidence of the faith of her family it may be stated that while she labors in Alaska among the Indians, her own sister, also a nun, is stationed in Africa where she works among the blacks.

Captain Jackson to Retire.

It is stated that at an early date Capt. D. B. Jackson, Manager of the Puget Sound and Alaska Steamship Co., will retire from his position. It will be remembered that he disposed of his interest in the corporation to the N.P. R.R. Co. some months ago. There is again considerable speculation as to his successor. A Tacoma gentleman who is in town says that it will be Walter Oakes, at present secretary of the company. He is a son of President T. F. Oakes of the N.P., and is familiar with the duties of the office.

To Be Banquetted.

Mr. Frank Bakeman of the Canada Western Railway Company, leaves for home in Chicago on Friday morning next, and on the eve of his departure a farewell banquet will be given to the friends of the road. Invitations bearing the names of Mr. Bakeman, F. P. Blackman and Col. A. J. Kane have been issued. The government, the corporation, members of parliament and representatives of the business interests of the city will be present. The banquet will be given at the Hotel Victoria where preparations are already being made for it. Mr. Blackman, attorney for the Chicago gentlemen interested in the enterprise will remain in Victoria for some time. Mr. Bakeman will return to the city in October or November.

Didn't Face the Music.

Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed with the performance of C Battery band at the regatta on Saturday, and it is understood that at a special meeting of the officers of the corps this evening the matter will be strictly looked into. The band played about ten minutes at a time and rested half-an-hour. A general request was made to them to play some American piece. "Hail Columbia," "Yankee Doodle," or "The Star Spangled Banner," in honor of the American visitors as the City of Seattle steamed into the harbor. They refused. To cap all they bundled up their instruments and marched off without playing the national anthem, although civilly requested to do so in the name of the managing committee by the secretary of the club, Mr. Richard Jones.

All the canneries, with the exception of those on Alert Bay, have closed down for the season. Nothing was heard from the Forks of the Skeena, where it was expected that the Indians wouuld attempt to stop the steamer Caledonia from landing.

The Louise Accident.

The steamer Princess Louise, which struck a rock near Pine Point, Queen Charlotte Sound, is now at the Outer wharf. There was a dense fog in the Sound at the time, so she was going quite slow when she struck. It is thought that she is pretty badly damaged, but as the diver who went down to examine had not made his report at 4 o'clock the extent of the damage could not be learned.

Will See the Fight.

W. L. Ogle who sold the city the chemical engine for the Gutta Percha & Rubber Manufacturing Co. of Toronto, leaves in the morning for New Orleans where he goes to see the Corbett-Sullivan fight. Said he yesterday: "I am going to New Orleans to the convention which will meet on Sept. 7 to nominate either Sullivan or Corbett for the championship of the world. I am a Sullivan man myself." Mr. Ogle telegraphed for a ticket but received word that the scalpers had secured them all and was forced to pay $100 for a box seat.

Disease Caused Death.

At the inquest held at the Jubilee hospital on Saturday afternoon on the body of Stephen Oscar Flynn, it was stated in confidence by Dr. Watt, who made a post mortem, that the deceased was suffering from a complication of diseases. The heart was weak, the kidneys diseased and the general system poisoned by syphilis. Dr. Davie who attended the deceased stated that he found on examining the deceased when he entered the hospital that he was suffering from bruises about the neck and face. The general condition of the deceased was as described by Dr. Watt. Drs. Sproule and Hall who were present when Flynn died, gave it as their opinion that death resulted from disease, probably superinduced by exposure. The jury returned the following verdict: "We find that the deceased, Stephen Oscar Flynn, met his death from a complication of diseases, superinduced by exposure, and that there has been no evidence produced to show that the deceased met with violence at the hands of any person in particular."

LIGHT ON THE SEWERAGE.

Some Interesting and Not-Generally-Understood Facts Elicited in Interview.

Mr. E. Mohun, C.E., sewerage engineer, was asked Saturday morning by a TIMES reporter what he had to say in reply to Ald. Baker's charge, made at the public meeting Thursday evening, that he, Mr. Mohun, was principally to blame for not having had the sewerage connections made: Mr. Mohun did not wish to speak upon the subject at all, but finally said: "Either Ald. Baker must be grossly ignorant of the whole matter or he wilfully misrepresented me. Had he been properly informed on the question he must have known that no power was granted me to order those connections made. As to Ald. Baker's criticisms upon the work and the alleged extravagance in conducting it, I think it ought to be plain to everyone that Ald. Baker cannot be an expert upon sewerage, and is therefore quite likely to be wrong in his surmises, for they can be only surmises. To show whether the work has been carried on economically or not I may state that the expenses have been only 8¼ per cent. on the value of the work executed. I think that should be fairly conclusive. Mr. McDonald tried to argue that his contract was the lowest and would be the best for the city; let us see the difference between his and Mr. McBean's: Mr. McDonald's $351,-091.19; Mr. McBean's, $249,970.44¾. Then again, there has been a cry of "why isn't the work finished? The contract time does not expire until October 31, so there is not much reason in that question. The work of clearing and examining the sewers is being pushed as quickly as possible, and I can assure you that the connections will be made before the expiration of the contract, and that is something that doesn't often happen."

TREATING REFRACTORY ORES.

A Chemical Process Which Has Shown Wonderful Results.

Mr. A. J. Colquhoun, of Glasgow, Scotland, representing the Gold and Silver Recovery Syndicate, is at the Hotel Victoria, having arrived on Saturday night from Donald, where his experimental plant has been constructed. He has come to British Columbia to introduce the McArthur-Forrest process of working gold and silver ores without amalgamation or roasting. This new method, which has caused so much talk in the mining world, depends for its success upon the chemical affinity of cyangsen for gold and silver; these metals form soluble double cyanides with the alkali metals. To form double cyanides, ores containing gold, silver, copper, etc, are heated with solutions of potassium and dissolved. By reducing the strength of the solutions the solvent action of the base metals can be reduced to a minimum, the gold and silver, being easily soluble, dissolving out with only traces of the base metals. The ore is ground to the fineness of sea sand, this is mixed with a solution of cyanide containing an average of 4 per cent. cyanogen. Their chemical action is aided by trituration or percolation. The mass remains in the vats six hours, when most of the gold and silver is extracted. The mass is then transferred to wooden vats, the solution allowed to settle, and then drawn off. Precipitation of the gold and silver in the solution is attained by passing through zinc threads. This process is protected by letters patent; is is simple and effective. The machinery does away with all calculation or wasting, consisting of crushers, either stamps or rollers, to pulverize the ore to the necessary consistency, and the few tubs or vats referred to for trituration, filtering, etc. A mill of this description would cost about the same as a plain stamp mill with copper plates. A mill capable of treating 50 tons per day, under ordinary local conditions would not exceed $30,000, including everything, or about $600 for every ton to be treated per day. The advantages are: no expension stock of mercury involving an outlay of $30,000 or $40,000 in a fifty stamp mill such as described; no complicated machinery, no intricate manipulation. The process is being worked in South Africa with satisfactory results, and is looked upon in the Transvaal as the only successful process for treating refractory ores. Out of a lot of refractory ore lying dormant at one of the mines in that state, and regarded as a valueless encumbrance, 19,000 oz. was taken out in April and 13,500 in May, by means of the McArthur-Forrest process. All the Transvaal mines have added from 1500 to 2000 oz. to their output since the introduction of this method. Ninety per cent. is the average extracted from the most refractory ores. Ores not amenable to pan or amalgamation are readily treated by the McArthur-Forrest system. It is worked cheaply, no roasting, fuel or mercury required, no smelting, simple machinery, small power, economy in time, efficiency and ease of application. The following results were obtained from auriferous ores treated in this province by the method described:

LOCALITY	ASSAY oz dwt grs	EXTRAC'N oz dwt grs	p. c.
Kootenay gold...	7 4 2	7 0 13	98

Mr. Colquhoun will be pleased to meet gentlemen in the city who are interested in the mines of the proivnce and explain to them the workings of the McArthur-Forrest system of reducing refractory ores.

Minor Police Court Matters.

There were three drunks up at the police court this morning, and the regular penalties were imposed. Jenny Chickens was charged with having a bottle of whisky in her possession, and was fined $25 or one month. Henry Yates pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting his wife, but was fined $10 and went to jail in default. A charge against Yung See, on remand, for having a piggery on his premises, was withdrawn, the nuisance having been removed. The case of Low Chue, assault, was further remanded till Wednesday.

WHITELAW WILL TRY AGAIN.

Merritt Wrecking Co. Understood to Have Withdrawn.

After all Capt. Whitelaw, the man of patience, will have the job of raising the San Pedro. He went to work again this morning and now all of the coal in the sunken vessel will be removed. Then every possible contrivance known to the skill and science of wrecking will be concentrated in a grand effort to float the vessel. This time every preparation will be made and the test will not come until it is known that every implement in use will furnish the acme of force. It is understood that the Merritt Wrecking Co. withdraws although Capt. J. M. Lachlan may remain for a time as consulting wrecker. His two divers, F. R. Sharp and A. Anderson left for New York last evening. When the captain will go is not known. It is understood that it is upon his advice that the coal is coming out.

Supreme Court.

Re Mercantile Agency Co.—Mr. A. L. Belyea moved this afternoon before his Lordship the Chief Justice to dissolve the injunction herein and quoted a number of cases to show that no injunction will lie unless the libel complained of is proved to be untrue, the onus of proving it untrue lying with the plaintiff. The plaintiff in this case did not deny that the sum was due, and there was no evidence of mala fides on the part of the defendant. Mr. J. P. Walls, on behalf of the plaintiff, was not called on, his Lordship explaining that the question was not whether the debt was or was not due, but whether the defendant attempted to extort payment in an illegal manner. A creditor had a right to sell a debt due to him, but in this case the libel consisted in the cowardly insinuation that the plaintiff was a man without conscience, and that it was not worth while to attempt to collect the debt by the usual legal process. The defendant had no business to go with a knife to extort payment, nor had he a right to hire a bravo to do so, and many a man would rather face a bravo with a knife than this mercantile agency. His lordship then dismissed the motion with costs.

Good News From the Fraser.

The "high line pack" in sockeye salmon has been reached on the Fraser by Messrs. Ewen & Co., and D. J. Munn & Co. of the Bon Accord cannery. The pack will reach this season 7000 cases and the greater portion of this year's pack has been sold already at very good prices. The outlook upon the Fraser is now very much brighter than in the opening months of the year, and reports of business from New Westminster show an encouraging revival of trade.

To Hesitate Is to Be Lost.

It is a curious fact that left to themselves the fingers will generally spell a word correctly. It is in the hesitation that certainty is lost. There can no doubt that the fingers of a writer acquire a sort of automatic education. Even when a doubt as to the right spelling of a word has crossed the mind the hand will usually bring the letters into form if given its course.

It is as if it consciously reasoned, "I have always driven the pen so, and so, having begun so!" But once hampered by the spirit of investigation the irresolute hand inclines toward the Unabridged.—Boston Commonwealth.

Cooking Dried Fruits.

Every one does not know how to cook dried fruits properly. This is oftentimes the reason why more people do not like them. Prunes and apricots are delicious, if prepared in the right way. They should be washed and soaked in cold water for twenty-four hours; then the kettle with its contents should be placed on the stove and heated to the boiling point. Let this simmer for three or four hours, not adding the sugar until a half hour before the fruit is taken up. It will be almost jellied, and when served with cream it makes a delicious dessert.—Food.

ROMANCE OF THE FOREST.

Chief of the Hesquiots, Noble Young Antonin, Buried With Christian Rites.

An Indian Chief's Revenge and Death—High-souled Conduct of Father Brabant.

Antonin, the last of the Hesquiot chiefs, passed away on Thursday evening, and now his Aunt Clotilde reigns in his stead as queen of the tribe. Antonin died a Christian, having been reared in the Catholic faith, and was buried as a Christian, but during the night and day succeeding this death many were the weird, yet picturesque, scenes enacted by his tribe.

The news of the death reached the city Saturday evening, on the arrival of Father Brabant, who has charge of the mission at Hesquiot. The priest is a guest at the bishop's palace, and it was there that he gave a TIMES reporter the details of the interesting story last evening.

"Yes," said he, "poor Chief Antonin is dead. He did not rule long, being but 19 at his death. Let me say here, too, that in all my experience as a priest I have never seen anyone better prepared to die. His aunt, who goes by the Christian name Clotilde, is now the Queen of the tribe. I say to you here that many make the mistake of believing that our Indians elect their chief; it is not so. The chieftainship is hereditary, and the succession is the same and as carefully drawn as in the most enlightened kingdom of the world. Antonin died without issue, being in fact single, and the rulership went to the next in line of succession, his aunt. The young chief was to have been married and had built himself a fine house. But he was consumptive and was unwell for the last six months of his life. He was a noble fellow, just, law-abiding, honest and was greatly beloved by his people. The last night I shall never forget. There is a tribal custom which orders that the chief's house shall be torn down and burned, and another that his body shall not be buried, but placed in a tree, upon and around which blankets and banners are hung, upon these a discription of his deeds of valor, and an account of his life being inscribed. The young chief as he lay upon his dying bed requested his aunt to see that he be buried like a Christian, and that his house be spared for use in the future. This she told me, and I determined to try to carry it out. And that night, it seemed, there was a contest between the pagan and the Christian. True, many Indians who had gone before Antonin had received Christian burial, but he was a chief, and the older Indians, less fervent in the faith, sought to have the tribal law prevail.

There was no sleep in the village that night. Surrounded by his relatives and subjects, the chief died. The louder wailing and crying told of the end. Then a bugle was sounded, and when all had assembled an old blind Indian made a speech of two hours' duration telling of the good deeds and exemplary life of the dead chief and of the loss sustained.

I ordered a coffin made, and in the middle of the night the body was placed in it and carried to the chapel. Very early in the morning I prepared for the funeral. In the church a mass was said, and then the march to the cemetery began. The aunt followed close by the coffin, crying. Her mournful tones I cannot describe. Tears came to my eyes. The grave was not ready, and a slight delay was necessary. The entire tribe squatted down around the coffin, still crying. The ceremony over I left several trusted Indians to guard the grave and returned home. We conquered as to the Christian burial, but the house was torn down and burned, according to the custom prevailing there. That, however, the queen consented to, as they told her it would always remind her of her grief; I thought it best not to interfere."

"No, there will not be any ceremony at what you would call the coronation of the queen. She will be duly acknowledged, however, probably at the first gathering. Clotilde is a widow and the mother of two children, a boy and a girl. The little heir-apparent or crown prince is a bright boy. His name is Eusteh."

"So you think the names peculiar? The truth is, we are rather hard up for names. The older Indians cannot pronounce, or at least make the sound of f, v, and r, and b they pronounce p. That is the difficulty. Their young ones are able to do so after a time, but not without trouble, but the old folks never. We are dropping the Indian names."

A curious circumstance is the fact that the father of Antonin was the chief who shot Father Brabant in October, 1875. The affair will be remembered by old residents of the province. That chief, unpopular with his people and surrounding tribes, returned home from a visit to Victoria. Smallpox was prevalent, and he was quarantined. The revenge he sought was a peculiar one. In the hope that if he killed Father Brabant the whites would come down and kill his whole tribe, he borrowed the priest's own gun and shot and wounded him. The story of the sending for relief to Victoria by the Indians, of the priest's suffering till it came, and of the finding of the chief's body in the woods, where he perished after fleeing from Hesquoit is well known. A further interesting circumstance is the fact that Father Brabant saved the infant Antonin, the chief's son, from death at the hands of relatives, and that as a man he was at his side to minister to his last wants on earth.

Father Brabant is a shining example of the self-abnegation to which the spirit of charity and humility will lead a man. A graduate with the highest honors of one of Europe's best educational institutions, brilliant, of good family, with positions of great honor open to him, he has buried himself for 17 years in the wilds of the West Coast of this island for the sake of his little band of Indians.

How the Anchor Became the Symbol of Hope.

Among the ancients the anchor, as the hope and resource of the sailor, came to be called "the sacred anchor" and was made the emblem of hope. The early Christians adopted it as such, and it is found engraved on rings and depicted on monuments and on the walls of cemeteries in the catacombs. The anchor was associated with the fish, the symbol of the Saviour. The fact that the transverse bar of an anchor below the ring forms the cross probably helped toward the choice of the anchor as a Christian symbol.

How to Pronounce Some Common Words.

Egotism—Eg-o-tism. Epitome—E-pit-ome. Equinox—Eq-kwe-nox, not e-quinox. Executor—Egz-ec-utor, not with the sound of x. Extraordinary—Ex-tror-de-nar-ey, not ex-tra-ordinary, nor extronarary. February—as spelled, not Febuary.

How to Keep Cool During a "Heated Campaign."

Think often of some previous campaign when you were intensely excited, and remember how little difference the result of it really made to you. Call to mind how many men you know who were once on the other side and are now voting with you, or vice versa. Consider how many hundred "rebels" have become more radical than Lincoln was, how many original Republicans have turned Democrats, how many Englishmen have become frantic protectionists in new countries and how many Irishmen have turned Republicans, and that even you may change. It's the privilege of a man to change his mind. A jackass can't.

How to Take Care of Lamps.

The two chief sources of trouble with lamps are dirty burners and badly fitting wicks. Lamps should be trimmed and filled with oil every morning. Once a week the oil container should be emptied out and the small amount of dirty oil thrown away. At least once a month the burners should be boiled for a few minutes in soda and water. Be careful that the wicks always fit exactly. If possible when new wicks are required the lamp burned should always be sent to the place where the lamp was purchased to be fitted with wicks, for not only is it possible to have the wick too small, but it is always quite possible to have it too thin for the burner. There should be a new wick at least once a month if the lamp be in constant use. Never turn down a wick and allow it to glimmer, for that chars the wick and then the lamp will either smoke or smell, or both.

How to Make "Cheat Oyster."

Take of tomatoes one pint, canned or fresh; take a large teacupful of white codfish, picked up fine; add to this three pints water and a small tablespoonful of good butter. When these have boiled twenty minutes, add one pint fresh milk, having ready one-half teaspoonful of baking powder. Use immediately. The taste is similar to oysters or lobsters. All flavor of tomatoes and fish is gone.

How to Make all Chairs Comfortable.

Have the back legs of all chairs cut off so that they shall be about two inches shorter than the front legs. The chief cause of fatigue in sitting comes from sliding forward, thus straining the muscles and ligaments in the small of the back. If a chair seat slants backward this will be obviated.

THE ENGLISH PHEASANT.

Interesting Details Concerning the Breeding and Shooting of These Birds.

Vast Outlay for only a Few Weeks' Sport Upon the Great English Estates.

BANBURY, England, July 25.—From any point of consideration the English pheasant is the most splendid bird that reaches the English market.

Somebody, perhaps an Irishman, has called it "the sacred Ibis of Great Britain." It is certainly all but worshiped. The idolatry is an expensive one, for it surely costs England, Ireland and Scotland more than £1,000,000 to rear, to shoot and to finally eat such pheasants as annually come to the gun.

The limitations of shooting in Great Britain undoubtedly add much, from the sportsman standpoint, to the deep British interest at all times in these splendid birds. It is almost inconceivable to an American how universally the "sportman" craze prevails in England, Ireland and Scotland, and how every acre of land and rod of shore, outside of and distinct from all other uses to which it may be put, is sportsman's property, yielding extraordinary returns in rentals for the "shooting" and "fishing" rights alone. On a former occasion I demonstrated that the exercise of these rights and privileges annually cost British sportsmen the enormous sum of £6,000,000, or $30,000,000 in American money.

This vast expenditure is almost wholly confined to whatever pleasure may be got in poking about moors, other waste though thoroughly guarded tracts and tenant farmers' fields for snipe, quail and grouse, capercailzie and deer. Pheasants, then, while they may eventually come to the tables of the vulgar tradesmen and literary folk, are really the game birds of the British aristocracy, and of the landed aristocracy at that. They are found only within the grounds of gentlemen's seats and lordly demesnes, save where, as in pheasant farms, they are exclusively bred to increase the numbers upon the estates.

Every British nobleman's estate and every English, Irish or Scottish gentleman's country seat is in point of fact to a greater or less degree a pheasantry, and the increase and protection of this one game bird are paramount to all other duties or pleasures. From every accessible means of information I believe that fully 1,000,000 pheasants are annually slaughtered in the United Kingdom. Of these over 100,000 reach the London market stalls alone, and this number represent only those which have legitimately come from the "battues" or "shoots" in October, November and early December, and do not take into account the heavy annual drafts by poachers upon the rich and well stocked preserves.

Necessarily great pains are annually taken to keep up the pheasant supplies. There are some professional breeders. Their establishments are distinctively known as game farms. From these pheasants' eggs, chicks and adults are often supplied by the hundreds and thousands to the more aristocratic estates.

The Prince of Wales is by no means first among the breeders, and yet on his estate of Sandringham and the adjoining property of Castle Risingham, which he has leased for sporting purposes, as many as from 7,000 to 8,000 pheasants are annually provided by his royal highness for his sportsmen friends. In two or three of the dukeries, and on other large estates as well, immense pains and expense are given to insure abundant supplies of the bird of Colchis. The killing of from 2,000 to 4,000 birds at one "battue" has often been recorded, and it is well known that 9,500 were shot during one season at Elvedon, in Norfolk, which has an area of 17,000 acres.

On all estates of average area the head gamekeeper will be allowed a half dozen keepers to assist him in breeding and caring for the game and in protecting it from inroads of poachers. Often the number of under keepers will be increased by drawing, at certain seasons, upon the under foresters; so that where from 2,000 to 4,000 pheasants may be required for the autumnal guns of milord's sportsmen guests, with the wives and children of the helpers who may live in cottages within the demesne walls, a score of persons will be employed in the breeding and caring for pheasants upon one estate alone.

Usually these birds which have escaped both the poacher's nets and the sportsmen's guns are allowed to run wild during the winter, care principally being taken to keep their runs and coverts clear of too great obstructions by snow, to have their haunts occasionally provided with dry straw or leaves, and to keep their drinking wells, or water troughs, open and clear of refuse, and that they are well fed with oats and corn. On some estates during October and November a certain number are caught, taken to the aviary, or pheasantry, their wings regularly clipped every two or three weeks, and they are thus kept and fed during the winter to provide the required egg supply during the spring months, the scarcity of eggs being one of the most serious drawbacks in pheasant breeding.

Usually, however, the old birds are not "taken up" until the last of February. Then they are systematically "starved" by nonfeeding for about a week, when large "figure 4" traps are set near their haunts. Trails of oats are scattered between. The pheasants readily follow these to the traps, which are sprung by strings in the hands of the keepers, any desired number being thus easily secured.

These birds are taken to the aviaries, which the keepers, among whom I have many good friends, insist on calling "areas." These are simply large wooded spaces in the demesne grounds, inclosed by fences of wire netting, sometimes twelve feet high. The wings of the birds are constantly clipped or they would escape; but the breeders find the labor required less costly than a wire netting covering for such necessarily large tracts. These aviaries are provided with mock coverts of bark and bough, with nesting places and watering troughs, while some are secured against vermin by curved iron bases to the inclosing netting charged with electricity, which causes death to all rodents attempting an entrance.

The pheasants begin laying by April, and they lay very much like the ordinary hen. Each can be counted on to furnish from twenty to thirty eggs. These are daily carefully gathered not only from the nests in the aviaries, but from those of the unimprisoned birds. The latter is not a difficult task for the keepers, for it is a singular fact that notwithstanding the pheasants' wild nature they nest most freely in shrub clumps along the edges of walks and drives. The keepers tell me they love the sound and sense of companionship, though themselves wonderfully secretive and sly.

And here the element of poaching is ridiculously observable. From April to June pheasants' eggs are worth from four to five pounds per 100, or from twenty to twenty-five cents each. A regular scramble for them is begun, and this season provides one of the richest of the poacher's harvests. It is a well known fact that one-half of the pheasants' eggs exposed for sale at the shopkeepers' are stolen. Expert poachers know every haunt of the pheasants upon the demesnes as well as the keepers. They are often ahead of the latter at the nests of the unimprisoned birds. Not only this, but keepers themselves do not scruple to surreptitiously dispose of milords' supply, or help themselves from the nests on neighboring demesnes.

Last spring I rode to Stourbridge, with Sir Offley ——. Our mission was to secure fifty dozen pheasants' eggs, which we accomplished.

"Probably one-half of them," he said, "came from my grounds. The other half are doubtless from several adjoining properties. But," he added dryly, "the poaching keeps the breed well crossed!"

But the pheasant hen is not a good mother. Foster mothers must be provided. Domestic "sitting hens" are therefore bought up from the peasantry roundabout in scores at from eighteen pence to two shillings each. The hatchery, always excellently walled and protected from vermin often still more expensively than the aviaries where the nesting is going on, consists of a long series of arched compartments, with sliding doors which descend and close the hen in tightly, leaving several apertures for light and air. The hen is removed from the nest daily, fed and watered, often given a run in the wet grass or her breast feathers otherwise dampened, to insure greater heat to the eggs, and carefully put back on her own nest, great care being taken that it is not fouled or the eggs misplaced, and that all the vermin be eradicated. At the end of three weeks the pheasant chicks have hatched. The hen is now placed in a conical, handmade rush or willow coop, with free ingress and egress for the brood, which is closed in at night and let out at 4 o'clock every morning. They are fed hard boiled chopped eggs mixed with oat and cornmeal, a sort of food the chief material of which is boiled and dried horseflesh and ground biscuit and oyster shells. Several men are now required for their care, and for three months the entire collection of coops is changed daily like a camp to new ground, and each day a trifle nearer the coverts or forest. The food is gradually changed to oats and cracked raw corn; the moment the young birds show signs of skulking they are removed from the domestic hen mothers and coops to the aviaries, and in July they are set at liberty within the grounds and forest of the demesne.

However great may be the care in the breeding of pheasants, not over one-half of the chicks come safely to maturity. Then the preserves are ready for depletion by poaching in its various forms. Not only do the birds suffer in diminution from the professional poacher, but milord's pheasants prove an irresistible temptation to every tenant and cotter living roundabout the demesnes.

On great estates from twenty to fifty men are regularly employed. There are the "agent" and his clerks. The bailiff, who looks after the home, farm and cattle, has his helpers. There are the head forester and perhaps a dozen under foresters, all of whose bird and wood craft are quite equal to those of the gamekeeper and his several under keepers. There are a master sawyer and three or four men engaged in cutting timber and posts from forest trees and repairing gates, walls and fences. The head gardener has several assistants. There are painters, glaziers, carpenters, etc., all of whom are familiar with the castle and the surrounding grounds. And on some demesnes you will find a half dozen lodgekeepers and their families. All of these poorly paid folk love a pheasant after it has come from the oven, pot or grill as well as do the aristocracy, and they all know how to get them without bothering the village marketman.

Professional poaching is a far less dangerous pursuit than it is usually considered. During the shooting season all sorts of village hangers on are pressed into service as "beaters" and to carry and fill the gamebags. It is an easy thing during the excitement to hide a generous portion of the game at convenient points, from which it is taken under cover of night. Clamor and fright also break up the rucks or coveys into detached files of pheasants, which retreat as high as possible among the branches of larch and fir, whence the poachers can easily take them from their roosts at night by hand. Other methods are smudging or smoking them into half insensibility and knocking them from their perches with clubs. Corn kernels, into which short bristles are inserted, are greedily devoured, and the birds run choking to the hedges to be easily taken by hand, while an ingenious and successful device is to fit a gamecock with artificial spurs and stealthily place him alongside a covert, when the pugnacious pheasant cock instantly responds to the gamecock's crowing challenge, when three or four brace of the valuable birds are easily taken.

Pheasant shooting usually begins the latter part of October and closes with the final Christmas "battue."

Notwithstanding high walls, gentleness of keepers and all possible preventives, many pheasants leave the demesnes, seeking the outer hedges and bog grasses, where they fall a prey to the snares of tenants and the guns of the poachers. Therefore a few days before the pheasant shooting begins all the outside help at the castle starts in a circle miles from the demesne and, concentrating toward the same, shout and "beat" with a terrific hullabuloo, thus driving many back within the preserves. Then milord and his friends, dressed as for snipe shooting on the moors and provided each with two double barreled, breech loading, center firing fowling pieces of No. 12 bore, a man for reloading and another for carrying cartridges, begin the slaughter. The sportsmen are stationed in advance at the edges of open places. The gamekeeper, who is a sort of master of ceremonies, brings his assistants or "beaters" into line behind. Then they move forward, perhaps ten yards apart, the keeper, who knows every bush, hedge, copse or tree, directing the "beaters" in every movement. In an instant the preserve is a perfect bedlam of yells and explosions. The men yell, "Hi-yi-i-i!" as they "beat" the bushes, calling, as the startled birds flash from copse to copse, "Cock to the right!" "Cock above!" "To the left, cock!" "Hi-yi-i-i—cock, cock, cock!" "Right ahead, cock!"—while the death dealing guns answer with such rapidity that they often get too warm to be held in the sportsmen's hands. This goes on all day, with an hour for a lunch of stew and beer at 2, when the "beaters" are furnished a liberal amount of bread, cheese and beer, and their assistants, who follow the hunters with carts and donkeys, by night have often gathered up from 500 to 1,000 slaughtered birds. These are shipped direct to London to dealers, who provide hampers and tags and pay for the birds from four to six shillings per brace.

Mothers

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend. 35 doses, 35 cents.

AMERICAN SCIENTISTS.

The U. S. Scientific Survey of the Straits Will Occupy Many Months.

The U. S. coast survey steamer Gedney, which has been in port since Saturday afternoon, sailed at 10:30 this morning for Discovery Island. She is, as stated in the TIMES, at work completing the triangulation of the Straits, and Discovery and Dungeness are the next two stations from which the observations will be carried on. After she finishes at the latter place she will return to Victoria for a few days. That will be in about a week.

A TIMES reporter was welcomed aboard the ship this morning by the Commander, Lieutenant Lucian Flynne. Said he:

"Our work is of a scientific nature and for the information of the ordinary reader I will say we are making a complete survey of the Straits, gathering all possible information. You can judge the amount of work we will do and the information we will gather when I tell you we will be all of this season, and half of next, at work on it. We will cover it all from the Cape to the Sound. Strange that the Straits are such a grand highway that our Government in the past conducted only one rough reconnoissance of them."

The Gedney has headquarters at Port Townsend, but will go to San Francisco. She usually does deep sea work. She is a 135-ton boat, was built on the Delaware River in 1875 and carries a crew of 30 all told. The officers and scientists on her are Lieut. Flynne, commander, Ensigns A. N. Mayer and J. L. Jayne, Dr. A. F. Berryhil, surgeon, and Draughtsman F. C. Shubert, U.S.N. J. J. Gilbert, assistant in the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, is also on board and has general charge of the work.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Church Services Yesterday—Business Conducted at To-day's Meeting.

The British Columbia branch of the Woman's Missionary Society opened with a consecration service on Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Epworth League room of the Pandora street Methodist church. The meeting was led by Mrs. Gooderham, of Toronto, President of the Dominion Woman's Missionary Society. A Chinese girl from the Rescue Home, who a few months age was rescued from slavery, was baptised during the meeting. In the evening a large congregation gathered in the church, the service being held under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. Gooderham, of Toronto, and Miss Wintemute, who has lately returded from Japan, gave the addresses of the evening.

This morning at 9:30 the session opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. C. M. Tait, of Chilliwhack. At 10 o'clock the Branch President, Mrs. C. Watson, called the meeting to order. The delegates' credentials were presented, when the following auxiliaries were represented: Victoria, Pandora street, Mrs. Burkholder and Miss Cartmell: Victoria, Gorge road, Mrs. Chapman; Vancouver, Homer street, Mrs. Maitland; Vancouver, Princess street, Mrs. Newcombe; Richmond, North Arm, Mrs. Sexsmith; New Westminster, Miss Nicks.

The officers present were: Mrs. C. Watson, President Victoria; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. C. M. Tait, Chilliwhack; 2nd, Mrs. Sexsmith, Richmond; 3rd, Mrs. Betts, Vancouver; corresponding Secretary, Mrs. D. Jenkins, Victoria; Treasurer, Mrs. B. W. Wilson, Vancouver; Assistant Recording Secretary, Mrs. Wm. Burgess, Victoria. The recording secretary, Mrs. Major, of New Westminster, was detained at home through the sickness of one of the family. The remainder of the morning was taken up by routine work—the appointment of committees, and receiving verbal reports from auxiliaries represented. Service of praise was held from 11:30 to 12 noon, at the conclusion of which the ladies adjourned to lunch in the schoolroom of the church. The afternoon session which opened at 2 o'clock was still in progress at the time of going to press. The business to be disposed of was: Devotional Exercises, Mrs. Strachan; Roll Call and minutes of previous session; President's address, Mrs. Watson; Reports from Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer; Reports from Mission Stations; Coqualeetza Home, Miss Clarke; Japan, Miss Wintermute; Chinese Home, Miss Leake; Port Simpson, Mrs. Strachan.

A public meeting will be held this evening.

GOES OUT OF OFFICE.

Dr. Davie Ceases To-day to be Provincial Health Officer.

The Provincial Health Officer goes out of office to-day, with the issue of an extra of the B. C. Gazette announcing his discharge. This was decided on at a meeting of the Cabinet on Saturday night, the action of the Government being based on the following letter from Dr. Davie:—

VICTORIA, B. C., August 20, 1892.

To the Honorable the Attorney-General of British Columbia:

Dear Sir—I have the honor to submit for the consideration of the Provincial Government the following facts concerning the present condition of the Province as regards smallpox:

In Victoria no case of the disease has developed since August 1. All cases of the disease remaining are carefully isolated in the Jubilee Hospital quarantine station. The Ross Bay suspect station is empty of suspects.

In New Westminster no case has developed during the month of August. Two cases there are thoroughly isolated, and will be discharged in a few days.

In Vancouver city and district, although the methods carried out are complex, and not the best obtainable, the municipal council of the city objecting to more simple and perfect plans, still the situation there is that the disease is under control, and as outside of these three localities there is not a case of smallpox, to my knowledge, in British Columbia, the continuance of my appointment as Provincial health officer is no longer necessary; the municipal boards and health officers can safely supervise what remains to be done.

If the Provincial Government concurs with me in my opinion I shall be pleased to be discharged from the office of Provincial health officer.

I would suggest, in the event of my being so released, that the medical inspector at Donald will still carry out the vaccination clauses of the Provincial Health Regulations, and that the said regulations should remain in operation, the various municipalities acting under them, until the necessity for such health rules ceases.

I have the honor to be, etc.,

JOHN C. DAVIE, M.D.,
Provincial Health Officer.

Time Wanted.

A newspaper man who sometimes talks like a streak of lightning, after getting his connections over the telephone wire, volleyed off in one long sentence a string of words as long as the Brooklyn bridge, ending with, "Can you?"

"Wait a minute," came back the answer, in a long drawl, "until we get another instrument put in. That lightning burned this one out."—New York Tribune.

Horses and Riders.

Some day an interesting article may be written on horses that have made history. Last month two horses came very near changing the course of events in two empires. On May 27, as Lord Salisbury was driving down St. James street, one of the carriage horses got its leg over the traces and thereby upset the nervous equilibrium of its companion. The two then bolted down the street and could not be stopped until they upset the carriage and made a general spill. Lord Salisbury was lifted out of the overturned vehicle, shaken but uninjured. His hat, however, was smashed. Had it been his head, what a difference it would have made!

In Germany the young emperor's horses have run away with him once more, but this time, beyond rushing over a hedge and across a field—they only afforded the emperor an opportunity for the display of his "customary coolness"—the episode had no result. Had the runaway team broken the emperor's neck what a prospect there would have been before Germany and Europe! The heir to the German throne is a child of ten, who but the other day received his first commission in the German army. There would have been a regency with all its complications.—Review of Reviews.

Ignorant City Folks.

City Niece (reprovingly)—Uncle Wayback, why do you pour your coffee into the saucer before drinking it?

Uncle Wayback—To cool it. The more air surface you give it, the quicker it cools. Guess these 'ere city schools don't teach much science, do they?"—New York Weekly.

HOW TO RAISE SILKWORMS.

A Profitable Industry That May Be Carried on in the United States.

Secure good sandy land; plant mulberry trees (the black species is the best) and have cocoons spun. The worms are placed on shelves under cover and require hardly any attention except a supply of mulberry leaves. About a month after being hatched the worm spins his cocoon in a day, when he is stifled in steam or by the use of a few drops of ammonia and the cocoon is soaked in water for a few minutes to dissolve the glue. Growers of silk usually sell the little bulbs to dealers who unwind the thread by mechanical means. Cocoons bring from $1 to $3.50 a pound, and $800 has been realized from an acre of mulberry trees. Worms are propagated from the cocoons by allowing them to grow until they burst out of the shell and develop into a butterfly which lays eggs. The eggs are hatched by exposing them for some time to a temperature of about 70 degs. Children and women can easily attend to this work.

How a Novice in Public Speaking Should Proceed.

Be careful to avoid excessive vehemence. On facing the audience draw a deep breath, stand very straight and remain perfectly silent for a few seconds. Nineteen times out of twenty the audience will become equally silent. Then begin very slowly and in so low a tone that the audience have to strain their ears to hear. The first flush of nervousness will pass away in one or two minutes, and then you can safely warm to the subject and raise your voice.

How to Clean Paint and Glass.

Soap will remove the paint; so use but little of it. Cold tea is the best liquid for cleaning varnished paint, window panes and mirrors. A sharp piece of soft wood is indispensable for cleaning out corners. A saucer of sifted ashes should always be at hand to clean unvarnished paint that has been badly smoked; it is better than soap. Never put soap upon glass unless it can be thoroughly rinsed off, which can never be done to window glass. Wash off the specks with warm tea and rub the panes dry; then make a paste of whiting and water and put a little in the center of each pane. Take a dry cloth and rub it all over the glass, and then rub it off with a chamois skin or flannel and your windows will shine like crystal.

How to Keep Wet Boots from Shrinking.

Wet boots and shoes may be kept from shrinking out of shape when drying if, as soon as taken off, they are tightly stuffed with newspapers. These form a sort of rude last and ought not to be removed until the boots are thoroughly dry.

Found at last a cure for dyspepsia K. D. C., guaranteed to cure. To be had from your druggist, or Beckwith Thompson & King, agents for B. C. *
